THE LEG ROWERS OF INLE LAKE

The men of the Intha people living on Inle Lake in Burma have a unique way to fish. Using their large conical nets, they row by standing on one leg on the prow of their canoe, and paddle with their other leg. They feed their families this way. Burma (Myanmar) is one of the most picturesque, historical, and serene places on earth. We'll be there again next February. (Glimpses of Our Breathtaking World #27 photo ©Jack Wheeler)
