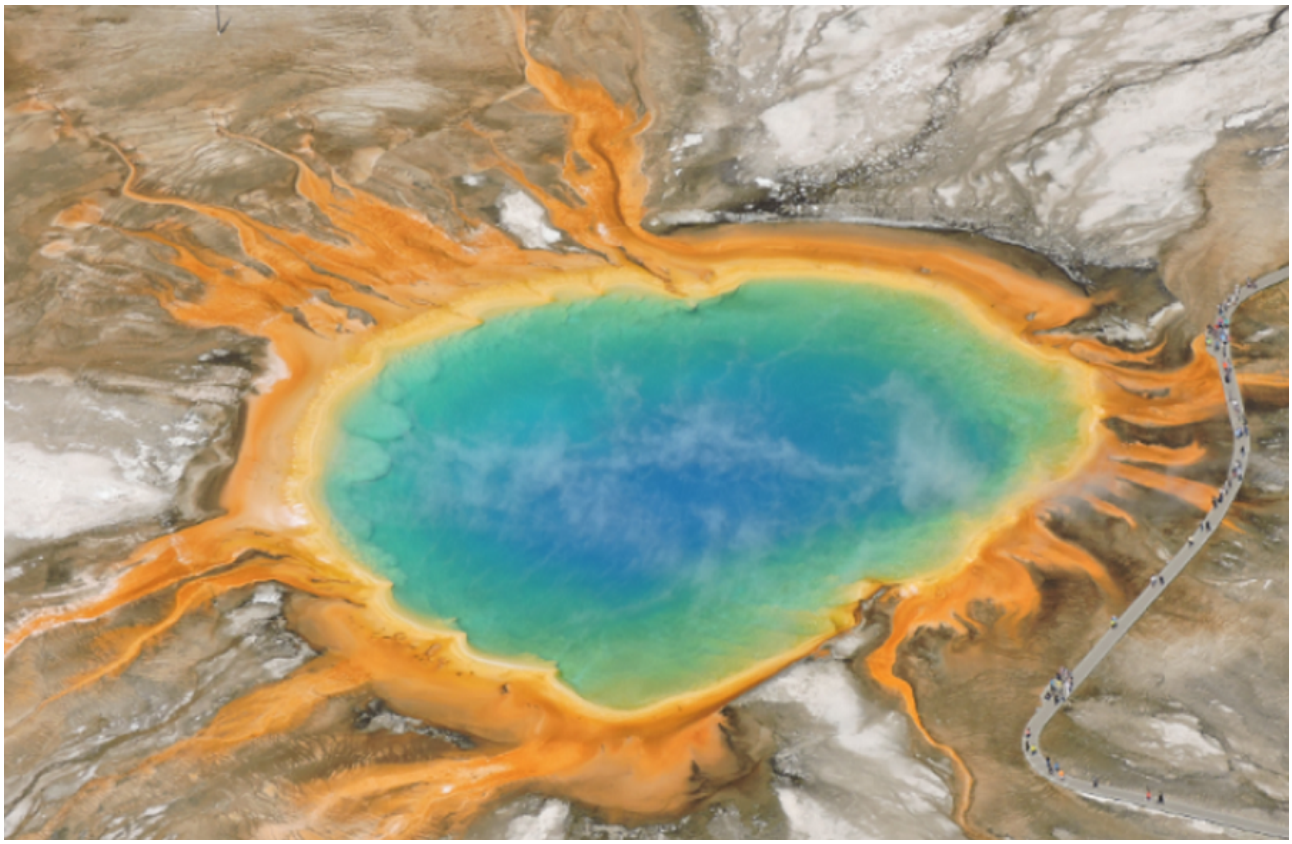
THE GRAND PRISMATIC SPRING OF YELLOWSTONE



There are places in our world so staggeringly beautiful to have to see them to believe they exist. Yet those people walking along the foot bridge can't see what you're looking at. That has to be in the air, hovering from high above in a helicopter. We live in a world of such beauty it really does take your breath away. And best of all, the beauty of the Grand Prismatic Spring of Yellowstone is right here in America.

Here we are at Yellowstone in Wyoming, a wonderland by itself. Just to the south are the Grand Tetons. To the west is the Sawtooth Range and the Middle Fork of the Salmon River – one of the best whitewater runs on the planet. It goes endlessly on and on. America the Beautiful is not just a song – it's glorious reality. (Glimpses of Our Breathtaking World 135, photo ©Jack Wheeler)